WELCOME

Welcome to Peterson Air Force Base.

Welcome to Peterson Air Force Base and the 21st Space Wing, the Air Force's only organization providing missile warning and space control to unified commanders and combat forces worldwide.

As the Air Force's most widespread and diverse wing, Team Pete members can be found in 44 units at 26 locations in 4 countries.

In addition to our operational missions, the 21st also serves as host unit of Peterson AFB for four major military headquarters—North American Aerospace Defense Command, U.S. Northern Command, Air Force Space Command and SMDC/Army Strategic Command as well as the 302nd Airlift Wing (Reserve) and many tenant units from other major commands.

Peterson AFB is located adjacent to and east of Colorado Springs off U.S. Highway 24. Colorado Springs is the second largest city in the state, and has a population of approximately 500,000 people. Colorado Springs also hosts the United States Air Force Academy to the north, Cheyenne Mountain Air Force Station to the west, Fort Carson Army Post to the south, and Schriever AFB to the east.

When it comes to magnificent scenery and natural beauty, Colorado Springs has it all. It's the home of America's fabulous mountains, the Rockies, nestled at the foot of the famous 14,110-foot Pike's Peak. These "purple mountain majesties" inspired Katharine Lee Bates to write "America the Beautiful" a century ago.

The city's altitude is 6,035 feet, and some newcomers experience slight fatigue at first. New arrivals should allow time for their bodies to adjust to the elevation. Peterson is obviously in the Rocky Mountain region. Summers can be hot and winters cold in Colorado, but the dry climate is generally quite agreeable, whatever the season.

The Colorado Springs Airport, which shares runways with Peterson AFB, serves 10 airlines with more than 100 flights daily, offering non-stop service to 15 U.S. cities and easy connections to almost any city in the world.

Our unique combination of geography and climate make Peterson a true national asset. But the real strength of Peterson AFB is the men and women who work here—their energy, commitment, and professionalism.

Once again, welcome to Team Pete, and best wishes from all of us for a rewarding and enjoyable stay.

Brig. Gen. Richard E. Webber Commander, 21st Space Wing

Peterson AFB welcomed more than 7,000 distinguished visitors in 2004.

Peterson AFB traces its roots to the Colorado Springs Army Air Base, established on May 6, 1942, at the Colorado Springs Municipal Airport which had been in operation since 1926.

On Dec. 13, 1942, the base was renamed Peterson Army Air Base in honor of 1st Lt. Edward J. Peterson, who was killed during takeoff in his F-4 here.

The base assumed a new mission in the spring of 1943, that of heavy bomber combat crew training. The 214th Combat Crew Training School conducted the training, using the B-24 Liberator. From March 5 to Oct. 1, 1943, "Peterson Field," as the base was commonly called, was assigned to the 3rd Air Force, headquartered at Greenville Army Air Base, S.C.

Control of Peterson Field then reverted to the 2nd Air Force. In June 1944, the mission at the base once again changed, this time to fighter pilot training. The 72nd Fighter Wing assigned to the base employed P-40 Warhawks to carry out this mission.

In April 1945, Peterson Field was assigned to Continental Air Forces. The location of the Army Air Forces Instructors School at the base signaled another mission change. A short time later, on Dec. 31, 1945, the Army inactivated the base, turning the property over to the City of Colorado Springs.

The legacy of Peterson Field and the military presence in Colorado Springs took a significant turn in September 1947, following the establishment of the United States Air Force. Soon after its inception, the fledgling service twice reactivated the base, from Sept. 29, 1947, to Jan. 15, 1948, and again from Sept. 28, 1948, into 1949. During the latter period, the base served as an airfield for Headquarters, 15th Air Force, which had been temporarily located in Colorado Springs.

Peterson Field inactivated again when 15th Air Force moved to March Air Force Base in 1949.

The Air Force activated Peterson Field once more, following the January 1951, establishment of Air Defense Command at Ent AFB, located in downtown Colorado Springs at the current site of the U.S. Olympic Training Center.

The 4600th Air Base Group activated simultaneously on Jan. 1, 1951, and provided support for the newly established command. In 1958 the 4600th ABG was designated as the 4600th Air Base Wing.

On April 1, 1975, the Air Force redesignated the wing the 46th Aerospace Defense Wing.

One year later, on March 1, 1976, Peterson Field was renamed Peterson Air Force Base.

Strategic Air Command assumed control of the base on Oct. 1 1979. Then, on Sept. 1, 1982, USAF officials activated Air Force Space Command at Peterson, followed by the activation of the 1st Space Wing on Jan. 1, 1983.

Peterson AFB became the hub of the Air Force's space activity when the 1st Space Wing assumed host unit responsibility following the inactivation of the 46th Aerospace Defense Wing on April 1, 1983.

The 1st Space Wing then transferred host unit responsibility to the 3rd Space Support Wing, which activated on Oct. 15, 1986.

Finally, on May 15, 1992, these two wings inactivated and their personnel and equipment transferred to the 21st Space Wing, which activated on May 15, 1992.

1ST LT EDWARD J. PETERSON

Edward J. Peterson was born in 1917 in Englewood, Colo., and attended public schools there. He graduated from Denver University with a Master of Arts degree.

Upon completion of flying training in October 1941, he was commissioned as a second lieutenant in the Army Air Force. He was promoted to first lieutenant in February 1942 and was assigned as the operations officer of the 14th Photo Reconnaissance Squadron, Colorado Springs Army Air Base, Colo., in July 1942.

As he was taking off on a flight to Lowry Field in Denver on Aug. 8, 1942, the left engine on his Lockheed F-4 failed and he crashed.

Upon impact, the plane burst into flames. A base fire truck and crew were nearby, and Peterson was dragged out of the wreckage and taken to Glockner Hospital, now known as Memorial Hospital.

With extensive burns on his head, chest, and lower body, Peterson died a few hours later, becoming the first Coloradoan to lose his life in the line of duty at the base.

GETTING HERE

DIRECTIONS FROM AIRPORT: The Colorado Springs airport is located south of Peterson AFB. Following the road exiting the airport, turn right on Powers Boulevard. Stay on Powers approximately six miles. Turn right at the Airport Road intersection. Turn right at the next light. This is the access road to the Peterson AFB West Gate. If you wish to enter Peterson AFB through the North Gate, stay on Powers Boulevard until you reach Platte Avenue (U.S. Highway 24). Exit right; the exit for the North Gate is approximately one mile east of Powers Boulevard.

DIRECTIONS IF DRIVING: Entering Colorado Springs on Interstate 25 from either south or north, exit on Academy Blvd. Proceed towards the center of the city, turn east on Platte Avenue (U.S. Highway 24). The Peterson AFB North Gate will be on the right, approximately one mile east of Powers Boulevard. If coming from the east on Highway 24, the Peterson AFB North Gate will be on your left, on the eastern edge of Colorado Springs.

SPONSOR INFORMATION

Your sponsor can help make your arrival and in-processing procedure smooth. Talk with your sponsor about your needs, and ask for assistance with transportation, maps and base procedures.

The Air Force established the sponsor program to make reassignment easier. Your sponsor has experienced the relocation you are about to make and has answers to many of your questions.

If you don't hear from your sponsor within 60 days of your reporting date, call your new unit's orderly room.

ARRIVAL AND SIGNING IN

Peterson AFB has three visitor control gates. The West Gate is open 24 hours a day. The North Gate hours of operation are from 5 a.m. to 7 p.m. each day and the East Gate hours of operations are from 5 a.m. to 9 a.m. and from 3 p.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday. The East Gate is closed on weekends.

To sign in at Peterson or Cheyenne Mountain Air Force Station, report to the Military Personnel Flight in building 350.

People assigned to Schriever must report to their unit orderly room, which will schedule them for in-processing.

The base INTRO manager, at (719) 556-7377/DSN 834-7377, can provide orderly room numbers and can contact sponsors if necessary.

The base dorm manager can be called at 556-4027. The number for the billeting office, located in building 1042, is 556-6293.

Identification card applications for DEERS-eligible people are issued at the Military Personnel Flight customer service center in building 350. Civilian contractor badges and passes are issued at the Visitor Control Center. Monday through Friday. For more information, call (719) 556-7377.

VEHICLE REGISTRATION

All active-duty people assigned to Peterson are required to register their vehicles within the first 72 hours of arrival at the Visitors Center, located at building 1820, next to the North Gate.

Proof of current insurance, driver's license, and registration must be provided.

AUTOMOBILE TITLES: In order to title your vehicle, you must show proof of purchase with sales tax paid in a previous state, or you will be subject to Colorado sales tax. You will be assessed state tax of 3 percent, plus county and city tax at your home address. City and county tax varies and can amount to as much as an additional 1.5 percent of the purchase price. The total sales tax can be as high as 7.5 percent. If you purchased a vehicle overseas within last six months, it is subject to Colorado State sales tax when registered. All others are exempt.

EMISSION INSPECTIONS:

Colorado's Front Range cities AIR Program (Automobile Inspection and Readjustment Program) requires an AIR emissions test for all vehicles registered or operated in the AIR Program area, which includes all bases in Colorado Springs. Vehicles of temporary residents such as military personnel, students and "other non-program area residents" which include employees who are operating vehicles within the AIR program area are required to comply with all inspection requirements. Test renewals are based on the age of your vehicle. You must have a valid emissions test to register your vehicle on base.

For additional information, call (719) 633-2333.

INSURANCE: Vehicle insurance coverage is mandatory in the state of Colorado. It must be verified at the time of vehicle registration. The mandatory liability minimum in Colorado is $25,000 bodily injury, $50,000 per accident and $15,000 property damage.

DRIVING REGULATIONS:

The speed limit on Peterson is 30 mph, unless posted otherwise.

In the family housing areas, the limit is 15 mph. Colorado state law and base regulations require the use of seat belts at all times while riding in a car.

Child Restraints - Four Steps For Life. Step 1. Rear facing child seats for children from birth to at least 1 year old and at least 20 pounds. Step 2. Forward facing child seat for children over 20 pounds and one year old to at least 40 pounds and four years old. Step 3. Belt-positioning booster seats for children from over 40 pounds and four years to about 80 pounds and 4 feet 9 inches. If the child cannot sit all the way back in the seat and still bend his or hers knees, then he or she needs a booster seat. Step 4. Seat belts for older children large enough to fit correctly. Children under 12 years of age should not sit in a position where there is an air bag unless it has been deactivated.

AFI 91-207, The United States Air Force Traffic Safety Program requires operators of motorcycles, motor scooters or mopeds to wear an approved motorcycle helmet, eye protection, long pants, long sleeved shirt or jacket, full-fingered gloves and over-the-ankle boots.

Motorcycle operators must wear a Department of Transportation approved helmet (or better); impact resistant goggles or full-face shield covering the eyes; long sleeves and long pants; full fingered motorcycle gloves; sturdy footwear (over-the-ankle shoes or boots are highly recommended); brightly colored or contrasting vest or jacket; and reflective materials at night. "Beanie" helmets are not authorized.

Although Colorado is a no-helmet law state, active duty riders and their passengers must wear the protective equipment outlined in AFI 91-207 whether riding on or off base.

Riders who operate their motorcycles on base must have attended a Motorcycle Safety Foundation-approved course. Proof of this training must be provided when registering the vehicle on base.

FIREARMS REGISTRATION

People living in base dormitories or temporary lodging facilities must register and store privately owned weapons in the armory in building 1376.

You can check out your weapons temporarily, but they must be returned for storage within 72 hours unless you're going on temporary duty or have written permission from the first sergeant or commander.

Base housing residents may keep their privately owned weapons in their quarters and don't have to register them at the armory.

Concealed weapons permits issued by civil authorities are not valid on Peterson without written approval from the 21st Space Wing commander.

Don't transport weapons on Peterson unless driving directly to and from the Rod and Gun Club, security forces armory for storage or your residence in base family housing.

Tell the gate guards if you have a weapon and where you intend to take it. Weapons must be unloaded and transported in a vehicle's trunk.

Don't leave weapons unattended at any time. They must be under the control of a person 21 years old or older.

GIANT VOICE SYSTEM

In addition to broadcasting Reveille and Retreat, the Giant

Voice system plays a critical role in notifying base members of severe weather warnings and operational notifications such as force protection condition changes.

For example, if a tornado is spotted in Colorado Springs, a tornado siren warning would be a steady three-to five-minute tone.

There is a monthly base siren system test the second Friday of every month at noon. An announcement is made prior to,

USAF STANDARDIZED ALARM SIGNALS

REMARKS: Local, off-base jurisdictions rely on the National Emergency Action Notification (EAN) network and the Emergency Alert System (EAS). List local procedures:

and immediately after the test, informing base personnel to disregard the sirens.

CUSTOMS AND COURTESIES

The 21st Space Wing Operations Center plays Reveille, Taps, and the national anthem every day Monday through Friday.

Each weekday, Team Pete members observe customs and courtesies when they hear the national anthem at 5:30 p.m. over the Giant Voice public address system.

Since Reveille and Taps, are not part of official ceremonies, it is proper to proceed about your business. However, when the national anthem is played, it is appropriate to face in the direction of the flag and salute (when in uniform) or to place your hand over your heart if in civilian attire. When driving, stop, and sit quietly until the music ends.

INCLEMENT WEATHER PROCEDURES

To meet mission requirements and still take the best possible care of people during inclement weather, delayed reporting, early release, and base closure procedures are in place for all military and civilian people assigned to Peterson.

For purposes of reporting during inclement weather, base members will be designated as either essential or non-essential.

Everyone should check with their supervisor to see which category applies to them

Essential — The minimum number of people needed to keep critical operations functioning until additional support arrives.

These people include, but are not limited to, firefighters, security forces, command and control, snow removal, medical personnel, dining facility workers, designated child care workers, shift workers, and employees scheduled to telework.

Non-essential — People who could be delayed for short periods of time (hours to days) without serious mission impact.

Notification — The Peterson Snow Information line (719) 556-SNOW (719-556-7669) will be updated by 5:30 a.m. Inclement weather decisions will also be relayed to selected radio and television stations for broadcast. Severe weather alerts automatically update on the Peterson local data set located at <http://131.15.144.231:82/pv/frames.htm>.

Military members assigned to Schriever should call (719) 567-SNOW (719-567-7669) and members assigned to Cheyenne Mountain should call (719) 474-3333.

Delayed Reporting — This authorizes non-essential members additional time to safely report to work. The 21st Space Wing commander initiates delayed reporting when off-base driving conditions require additional time to arrive safely and gives on-base snow removal teams time to prepare the base for normal activity following a major winter storm.

People should not plan to arrive earlier than 30 minutes prior to the delayed reporting time to minimize interference with snow removal operations. Base housing residents should consider walking to work to minimize traffic on streets and in the parking lots.

Delayed reporting is based on normal duty hours, 7:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. and is mandatory for non-essential members to comply.

For example, in a two-hour delay, all non-essential members should plan to arrive at 9:30 a.m. and not earlier than 9 a.m.

Phased Early Release — Non-essential people may depart their duty location at a specified time before the end of the duty day. Phased early release notification will be passed through unit commanders and will be completed in 30-minute intervals by zip code.

The 30-minute interval reduces traffic congestion leaving the base and helps ensure everyone makes it home safely. Based on mission requirements, supervisors should use their judgment in deviating from the phased early release plan.

Base Closure — This means only essential personnel must report to duty (or remain on duty) if weather is severe enough to prevent replacements from safely reporting.

MISSIONS

NORAD is responsible for aerospace warning and aerospace control for North America.

NORAD

The North American Aerospace Defense Command is a bi-national United States and Canadian organization charged with the missions of aerospace warning and aerospace control for North America.

Aerospace warning includes the detection, validation, and warning of attack against North America, whether by aircraft, missiles, or space vehicles, utilizing mutual support arrangements with other commands.

Aerospace control includes ensuring air sovereignty and air defense of the airspace of Canada and the United States.

To accomplish these missions, NORAD adjusts its structure to meet the demands of a changing world.

A commander is appointed by, and is responsible to, both the President of the United States and the Prime Minister of Canada. This commander maintains headquarters at Peterson AFB, and a command and control center at Cheyenne Mountain AFS.

Cheyenne Mountain serves as a central collection and coordination facility for a worldwide system of sensors designed to provide the NORAD commander and the leadership of Canada and the United States with an accurate picture of any aerospace threat.

Three subordinate region headquarters at Elmendorf AFB, Alaska, Canadian Forces Base, Winnipeg, Manitoba, and Tyndall AFB, Fla., receive direction from the NORAD commander and control air operations within their respective areas of responsibility.

To accomplish the aerospace warning mission, NORAD is responsible for providing integrated tactical warning and attack assessment of an aerospace attack on North America to the governments of Canada and the United States.

NORAD's aerospace control mission includes detecting and responding to any air-breathing threat to North America. To accomplish this mission, NORAD uses a network of ground-based radars and fighters to detect, intercept and if necessary engage any threat to the continent.

As a part of its aerospace control mission, NORAD assists in the detection and monitoring of aircraft suspected of drug trafficking. This information is passed to civilian law enforcement agencies to help combat the flow of illegal drugs into North America.

Through outstanding cooperation and cohesiveness, NORAD has proven itself effective in its roles of watching, warning and responding. By adapting to the changing world, NORAD continues to play an important role in the defense of Canada and the United States.

The events of Sept. 11, 2001, provide evidence of NORAD's responsiveness and continued relevance to North American security.

By quickly meeting new threats posed by terrorists, NORAD provides a potent military response capability for civil authorities to counter domestic airspace threats.

U.S. NORTHERN COMMAND

United States Northern Command was established in 2002 to provide command and control of Department of Defense homeland defense efforts and to coordinate military support to civil authorities.

USNORTHCOM's specific mission is to:

Conduct operations to deter, prevent, and defeat threats and aggression aimed at the United States, its territories, and interests within the assigned area of responsibility and as directed by the President or Secretary of Defense, provide military assistance to civil authorities, including consequence management operations.

U.S. Northern Command's area of responsibility includes air, land, and sea approaches, and encompasses the continental United States, Alaska, Canada, Mexico, and the surrounding water extending approximately 500 nautical miles. It also includes the Gulf of Mexico, Puerto Rico and the U.S. Virgin Islands. The defense of Hawaii and our territories and possessions in the Pacific remain the responsibility of U.S. Pacific Command.

U.S. Northern Command is also responsible for security cooperation and coordination with Canada and Mexico. USNORTHCOM's missile defense mission encompasses North America, including Hawaii and Alaska.

USNORTHCOM consolidates under a single unified command existing missions that were previously executed by other DOD organizations. This provides unity of command, which is so important to mission accomplishment.

USNORTHCOM plans, organizes, and executes homeland defense and civil support missions, but has few permanently assigned forces. The command will be assigned forces whenever necessary to execute missions, as ordered by the President and Secretary of Defense.

Approximately 500 civil service employees and uniformed members representing all service branches comprise USNORTHCOM's headquarters.

The commander of USNORTHCOM also commands NORAD, a binational command responsible for aerospace warning and aerospace control for Canada, Alaska and the continental United States.

USNORTHCOM's civil support mission includes domestic disaster relief operations that occur during fires, hurricanes, floods, and earthquakes. Support also includes counter-drug operations, and managing the consequences of a terrorist event employing a weapon of mass destruction.

The command provides assistance to a lead federal agency when tasked by DOD. Per the Posse Comitatus Act, military forces can provide civil support, but cannot become directly involved in law enforcement.

In providing civil support, USNORTHCOM generally operates through established Joint Task Forces subordinate to the command. An emergency must exceed the capabilities of local, state, and federal agencies before USNORTHCOM becomes involved.

In most cases, support will be limited, localized, and specific. When the scope of the disaster is reduced to the point that the lead federal agency can again assume full control and management without military assistance, USNORTHCOM will exit, leaving the on-scene experts to finish the job.

AIR FORCE SPACE COMMAND

Air Force Space Command, created Sept. 1, 1982, defends America through control and exploitation of space. These functions are performed by space and intercontinental ballistic missile operations which are vital force elements in projecting global reach and global power.

HISTORY

Missile warning and space operations were combined to form Air Force Space Command in 1982. During the Cold War, space operations focused on missile warning, and command and control for national leadership. In 1991, Operation Desert Storm provided emphasis for the command's focus — support to the warfighter. ICBM forces joined AFSPC in 1993.

USNORTHCOM/NORAD Headquarters Building.

MISSION

Air Force Space Command makes space reliable for the warfighter by continuously improving the command's ability to provide and support combat forces — assuring their access to space. In addition, the command's ICBM forces deter any adversary contemplating the use of weapons of mass destruction. AFSPC has four primary mission areas:

Space Control ensures friendly use of space through the conduct of counterspace operations encompassing surveillance of space, protection of U.S. and friendly space systems, prevention of an adversary's ability to use space systems and services for purposes hostile to U.S. national security interests, and negation of space systems and services used for purposes hostile to U.S. national security interests.

Space Forces Support involves launching satellites and other high-value payloads into space using a variety of expendable launch vehicles and operating those satellites once in the medium of space and deorbiting and recovering space vehicles if required.

Force Enhancement provides weather, communications, intelligence, missile warning, and navigation. Force enhancement is support to the warfighter.

Force Application involves maintaining and operating a rapid response, land-based ICBM force as the Air Force's only on-alert strategic deterrent.

PEOPLE

Approximately 39,000 people, including military, civilian and contractor employees combine to perform AFSPC missions.

ORGANIZATION

Air Force Space Command has four Direct Reporting Units; two numbered air forces and two centers.

Fourteenth Air Force provides space warfighting forces to U.S. Strategic Command and is located at Vandenberg AFB, Calif. Fourteenth Air Force manages the generation and employment of space forces to support U.S. Strategic Command and North American Aerospace Defense Command operational plans and missions.

Twentieth Air Force provides continuous nuclear deterrence and combat-ready missile forces and is located at F.E. Warren AFB, Wyo. Twentieth operates and maintains AFSPC's ICBM weapon systems in support of USSTRATCOM war plans.

Space and Missile Systems Center at Los Angeles AFB, Calif. designs and acquires all Air Force and most DOD space systems. SMC oversees launches, completes on-orbit checkouts, and then turns systems over to user agencies. It supports the Program Executive Office for Space on the NAVSTAR Global Positioning, Defense Satellite Communications and MILSTAR systems. SMC also supports the Titan IV, Defense Meteorological Satellite and Defense Support programs, and Follow-on Early Warning System. In addition, it supports development and acquisition of land-based intercontinental ballistic missiles for the Air Force Program Executive Office for Strategic Systems.

The Space Warfare Center, at Schriever AFB, Colo. plays a major role in fully integrating space systems into air, land and sea operations. Its force enhancement mission looks at ways to use space systems to support warfighters in the areas of navigation, weather, intelligence, communications, and theater ballistic missile warning, and how these apply to theater operations. The SWC also develops tactics, techniques and procedures for all AFSPC current operations as well as for future developmental programs.

AFSPC is the major command providing space and ICBM forces for USSTRATCOM. AFSPC also supports NORAD with ballistic missile warning information, operates the SWC to develop space applications for direct warfighter support, and is responsible for DOD's ICBM force development evaluation program. AFSPC bases and stations include: Cheyenne Mountain, Schriever, Peterson, and Buckley in Colorado; Los Angeles, Onizuka, and Vandenberg in California; Cape Canaveral and Patrick in Florida; Minot and Cavalier in North Dakota; F.E. Warren in Wyoming; Malmstrom, in Montana; Clear in Alaska; Cape Cod in Massachusetts; New Boston in New Hampshire; and Thule in Greenland.

SPACE CAPABILITIES

Spacelift operations at the East and West Coast launch bases provide services, facilities and range safety control for the conduct of DOD, National Aeronautics and Space Administration and commercial launches. Through the command and control of all DOD satellites, satellite operators provide force-multiplying effects — continuous global coverage, low vulnerability, and autonomous operations. Satellites provide essential in-theater secure communications, weather, and navigational data for ground, air, and fleet operations, and threat warning.

Ground-based radar and Defense Support Program satellites monitor ballistic missile launches around the world to guard against a surprise attack on North America. Space surveillance radars provide vital information on the location of satellites and space debris for the nation and the world.

With a readiness rate above 99 percent, America's ICBM team plays a critical role in maintaining world peace and ensuring the nation's safety and security.

RESOURCES

AFSPC operates and supports the Global Positioning System, Defense Satellite Communications Systems Phase II and III, Defense Meteorological Support Program, Defense Support Program, NATO III and IV communications, Fleet Satellite Communications System UHF follow-on, and MILSTAR satellites.

AFSPC currently operates the Atlas II, Atlas V, Delta II, Delta IV, and Titan IV launch vehicles. Eastern and Western Ranges provide radar, telemetry, communications and Safety support for all launch operations, including shuttle operations.

AFSPC operates the nation's primary source of continuous, realtime solar flare warnings. The command also operates a worldwide network of satellite tracking stations to provide communications links to satellites — a system called the Air Force Satellite Control Network.

Ground-based radars used primarily for ballistic missile warning include the Ballistic Missile Early Warning System, PAVE PAWS, and PARCS radars. The Maui Optical Tracking Identification Facility, Ground-based Electro-Optical Deep Space Surveillance System, and phased-array provide primary space surveillance coverage.

The ICBM force consists of Minuteman III and Peacekeeper missiles that provide the critical component of America's on-alert strategic forces. As the nation's silent sentinels, ICBMs and the people who operate them have remained on continuous, around-the-clock alert since 1959 — longer than any other U.S. strategic force. More than 500 ICBMs are currently on alert in reinforced concrete launch facilities beneath the Great Plains.

AFSPC is the Air Force's lead command for and largest operator of UH-1N Huey helicopters. AFSPC uses helicopters to support ICBM operations at F.E. Warren, Malmstrom, and Minot AFBs, as well as space and missile launch operations at Vandenberg AFB.

SMDC/ARMY FORCES STRATEGIC COMMAND

The U.S. Army Space and Missile Defense Command provides command and control to the 1st Space Brigade and the 100th Missile Defense Brigade (Ground-based Midcourse Defense). SMDC also provides secure, space-based Blue Force Tracking and communications planning through Regional Satellite Communications Support Centers and the Spectral Operations Resource Center to Army forces and, upon request, to joint warfighters.

imagery, and early warning of missile launches. Space Soldiers are spread around the globe providing flexible, reliable, and pinpoint support to warfighters and homeland defense against missile attack.

SPACE

1ST SPACE BRIGADE'S 1ST SATELLITE CONTROL (SAT-CON) BATTALION operates and manages the Defense Satellite Communications System Operations Centers. This system provides assured communications for command and control, critical intelligence, video teleconferences, and logistics to U.S. warfighting forces — anywhere, anytime.

The battalion manages, plans, and controls payloads to assure the reliability of the communications they provide to tactical and strategic warfighters. The battalion also operates and maintains five companies that operate DSCS control facilities located around the world.

1ST SPACE BATTALION'S support to the Army, joint, and coalition warfighter spans the globe.

- The Army Space Support Company fields Army Space Support Teams to provide capabilities, expertise, and products as the warfighter plans and executes the full spectrum of military operations. The teams work closely with the Army's Space Operations Officers assigned to supported units. This partnership provides the warfighter with the best possible space support.

- The Theater Missile Warning Company operates Joint Tactical Ground Stations providing early warning of missile launches worldwide to deployed U.S. forces. The five JTAGS systems are operated by joint Army/Navy crews and are a part of U.S. Strategic Command's Tactical Event System.

193RD SPACE BATTALION: This Colorado Army National Guard battalion provides space-based support to designated ground forces commanders in support of Army operations. This battalion demonstrates that citizen-Soldiers can bring space capabilities to the Army and leverages the expertise and experience in space that these citizen-Soldiers gain in their civilian jobs.

MISSILE DEFENSE

The 100th Missile Defense Brigade (Ground-based Midcourse Defense), Colorado Army National Guard, provides oversight of the Soldiers trained to operate the nation's limited missile defense capability. The brigade comes under the overall direction of the responsible combatant commander during an operational mission.

The 49th Missile Defense Battalion, Alaska Army National Guard, provides physical security and defense of the interceptor site as well as operators who are trained to fire the missiles. The Soldiers who operate and maintain the missiles all undergo a strenuous course of education and training before being available for assignment to the missile site at Fort Greely, Alaska.

Working with USSTRATCOM, the Missile Defense Agency, the Army National Guard, and many others, SMDC is helping to develop a missile defense capability. As the user and operator of the Ground-based Midcourse Defense capability, SMDC is contributing to ongoing developmental efforts in planning and user refinements and establishing the tactics, techniques, and procedures with which it will be operated.

CHEYENNE MOUNTAIN AFS

The 21st Space Wing's Cheyenne Mountain Air Force Station is host to four commands: NORAD-USNORTHCOM, USSTRATCOM, and AFSPC.

The Cheyenne Mountain Operations Center serves as the command center for both NORAD-USNORTHCOM. It is the central collection and coordination center for a worldwide system of satellites, radars, and sensors that provide early warning of any missile, air or space threat to North America.

Supporting the NORAD mission, CMOC provides warning of ballistic missile or air attacks against North America, assists the air sovereignty mission for the United States and Canada, and, if necessary, serves as the focal point for air defense operations to counter enemy bombers or cruise missiles.

In addition, CMOC also provides theater ballistic missile warning for U.S. and allied forces.

In support of USSTRATCOM, CMOC provides a day-to-day picture of precisely what is in space and where it is located. Space control operations include protection, prevention, and negation functions supported by the surveillance of space.

CMOC is truly one of the most unique installations in the world. Apart from the fact that it is housed 2,000 feet underground, CMOC is also different from most military units because it's a joint and bi-national military organization comprised of more than 200 professional men and women from the Army, Navy, Marine, Air Force, and Canadian Forces.

Operations are conducted in seven centers manned 24 hours a day, 365 days a year.

The centers are the Space Control Center, Air Warning Center, Missile Warning Center, Operational Intelligence Watch, Systems Center, Weather Center, and the Command Center.

On Sept. 11, 2001, Cheyenne Mountain added another mission to its historic legacy in the defense of North America. The terrorist attacks against the United States marked the beginning of Operation Noble Eagle. Operation Noble Eagle is a homeland defense mission incorporating NORAD's mission of Aerospace Warning and Control to include the monitoring of the interior airspace of Canada and the United States.

Today, NORAD and CMOC stand ready to assist the Federal Aviation Administration and Navigation Canada in responding to any threatening or hostile domestic aircraft.

Oct. 1, 2002, marked the welcoming of two new commands, U.S. Northern Command and U.S. Strategic Command, to Cheyenne Mountain.

CMOC is responsible for providing support to USNORTHCOM's mission of homeland defense and USSTRATCOM's mission of space and missile warning, associated with the former U.S. Space Command.

21ST SPACE WING

21ST SPACE WING

The 21st Space Wing is the Air Force's only organization providing missile warning and space control to unified commanders and combat forces worldwide. The 21st SW provides missile warning and space control to NORAD and U.S. Strategic Command through a network of command and control units and ground and space-based sensors operated by geographically separated units around the world.

Members of the 21st SW operate and maintain a complex system of U.S. and foreign-based radars. These space warriors detect and track ballistic missile launches; deployments of new space systems; and provide data on foreign ballistic missile events.

Today, ballistic missile warning is critically important to U.S. military forces. At least 20 nations currently have nuclear, biological, or chemical weapons, and the technology to deliver them over long distances. According to intelligence estimates, during the next 10 years, several Third World countries will develop the technology and capability to launch intercontinental ballistic missiles at the United States.

Missile Warning

The wing's ground-based radars are comprised of PAVE Phased Array Warning Systems, referred to as PAVE PAWS, which detect sea-launched ballistic missiles; Ballistic Missile Early Warning Systems, or BMEWS; and a Perimeter Attack Radar Characterization System, or PARCS.

The 6th Space Warning Squadron at Cape Cod AFS, Mass., and the 7th SWS at Beale AFB, Calif., employ PAVE PAWS to watch America's coasts for incoming SLBMs or ICBMs and warn the appropriate authorities.

The wing's two BMEWS radar units are the 12th SWS, Thule AB, Greenland, and the 13th SWS at Clear AFS, Alaska. The 21st SW also has a detachment at RAF Fylingdales, U.K.,

21st SW Mission

Provide combat capabilities through missile warning, space control, and expeditionary forces of globally based units.

to coordinate cooperative missile warning and space surveillance with RAF counterparts.

The wing's 10th SWS at Cavalier AFS, N.D., operates the Perimeter Attack Radar Characterization System, or PARCS, to detect sea launched or intercontinental ballistic missile attack against the continental United States or Canada.

Space Surveillance

Space surveillance is a critical element of the space control mission and will be vitally important to support future theater missile operations and assured availability of U.S. space forces. Operation Iraqi Freedom proved once again that whomever controls the high ground has definite military advantage.

In addition to its wartime missions, space surveillance is important during peacetime. As part of the space surveillance mission, the wing operates command and control as well as active and passive surveillance units. More than 9,500 manmade objects in orbit around the earth, ranging in size from a baseball to the International Space Station, are regularly tracked.

Knowing the orbits of those objects is essential to prevent collisions when a new satellite is launched.

The 10th SWS PARCS supports the space surveillance network by providing surveillance, tracking and space object identification. The 1st Space Control Squadron at Cheyenne Mountain AFS, Colo., uses data from PARCS to provide collision avoidance support during each shuttle mission, as well as maintains an extensive satellite catalog. This catalog is used by U.S. civilian and military agencies, as well as by U.S. allies, when launching new satellites into space.

The 20th Space Control Squadron, Eglin AFB, Fla., provides dedicated active radar space surveillance. The 20th SPCS's Detachment 1 in Dahlgren, Va., operates the Air Force Surveillance Fence a system of round-the-clock sensors,

"The Fence" is comprised of a series of nine antenna sites across the southern United States. The system tracks when and what satellites are passing over the contiguous United States.

The wing also controls and operates optical space tracking systems under the 21st Operations Group.

The Ground-Based Electro-Optical Deep Space Surveillance system, or GEODSS, is operated by Det. 1, Socorro, N.M.; Det. 2, Diego Garcia, British Indian Ocean Territories; Det. 3 at Maui, Hawaii; and Det. 4 at Moron, Spain.

Space Control

The 4th Space Control Squadron at Holloman AFB, N.M., performs mobile space surveillance communications and space data relay.

The 76th SPCS at Peterson AFB, Colo., is Air Force Space Command's first offensive and defensive counterspace technology squadron and deploys counterspace prototypes to DOD exercises around the world.

The wing also:

- Serves as the host wing for Peterson AFB and Cheyenne Mountain AFS.
- Provides early warning of strategic and theater ballistic missile attacks and foreign space launches.
- Detects, tracks and catalogs more than 9,500 manmade objects in space, from those in near-Earth orbit to objects up to 22,300 miles above the Earth's surface.

- Explores counterspace war-fighting technologies in the field.
- Hosts NORAD, USNORTHCOM, AFSPC, SMDC/ARS-TRAT, and the 302nd Airlift Wing.
- Operates and supports Cheyenne Mountain AFS; Thule Air Base, Greenland, Clear AFS, Alaska; Cape Cod AFS, Mass, and Cavalier AFS, N.D.
- Provides community support to the 50th Space Wing, Schriever AFB.
- Provides community support to the Colorado Springs and the Denver areas.

WING OPERATIONS CENTER

The 21st Space Wing's Operations Center is the Air Force's only Missile Warning Sensor Management/Command and Control organization, responsible for space weapons systems in 44 units at 26 locations in four countries. The center provides immediate global and theater missile warning sensor management to NORAD, the Joint Chiefs of Staff, unified commanders, and combat forces worldwide.

The center also provides the wing commander command and control of assigned missile warning units and space assets, as well as real-time configurations and contingencies to maintain operational and system capabilities and required peacetime and wartime tasking.

21ST SPACE WING HERITAGE

The 21st Space Wing's heritage dates to World War II when the 21st Bombardment Group activated in February 1942 at Bowman Field, Ky. Thereafter, the group relocated successively to Jackson Army Air Base, Miss.; Columbia Army Air Base, S.C.; Key Field, Miss.; and MacDill Field, Fla.

The 21st Bombardment Group first trained on B-25 bombers, then converted to B-26s. The group largely served as an operational training unit assigned to 3rd Air Force; however, while at MacDill, from June 1942 to October 1943, the 21st Bombardment Group also carried out anti-submarine patrols over the Caribbean Sea. The 21st Bombardment Group inactivated Oct. 10, 1943.

The lineage of the 21st continued with the 21st Fighter-Bomber Group activated in April 1944. Initially, the group had three squadrons: the 46th, 72nd and 531st Fighter Squadrons, all flying the P-39Q Air Cobras. Two months later, the group converted to P-38J/L Lightning's and was attached to the 7th Fighter Wing to defend the Hawaiian Islands. It was re-designated the 21st Fighter Group in December 1944 and converted to P-51D Mustangs shortly before moving to Iwo Jima in March 1945.

Four months later, the 21st flew its first combat mission, escorting a formation of Bomber Command

B-29s to attack the heavily defended Nakajima aircraft factory near Tokyo. The group flew 48 sorties and claimed eight enemy aircraft kills. From then until August 1945, the group flew 33 long-range missions against Japan.

During 816 combat sorties, the 21st Fighter Group's pilots scored 58 Japanese aircraft destroyed in the air, 46 on the ground and 62 damaged aircraft. The group also produced two aces: Maj. Harry C. Crimp Jr. and Capt. Willis Mathews.

In December 1945, the 21st Fighter Group moved to Isle Field, Sampan, then to Northwest Field, Guam. In Guam, it switched to the P-47N Thunderbolt. The group inactivated there in October 1946.

POST-WORLD WAR II

The establishment of the Air Force in 1947 brought about many changes. The new standard organizational unit became the wing instead of the previous organizational standard, the group.

The Air Force wanted to preserve the lineage and honors of distinguished Air Groups of World War II, thus the 21st numerical designation was granted to the newly formed 21st Fighter-Bomber Wing activated at George AFB, Calif., in January 1953, flying P-51 Mustangs for six months before transitioning to F-86 Sabres.

While at George, they tested a new concept of tactical air deployment involving moving three squadrons and a maintenance support team to North Field, S.C., where they flew for more than a month.

In November 1954, the 21st FBW moved to Chamblee AB, France, where it stayed until it inactivated in February 1958. Its people and equipment were transferred to other Air Force units in Europe.

KOREAN WAR ERA

The 21st FBW was re-designated as the 21st Tactical Fighter Wing, activated at Misawa AB, Japan, and assigned to 5th Air Force in July 1958.

Its new mission involved the aerial defense of northern Japan and strategic bombardment in support of 5th Air Force contingency plans in Korea. They flew F-84G Thunder jets and T-33 Shooting Stars. Later that year, the wing converted to F-100 Super Sabres.

VIETNAM WAR ERA

The wing was inactivated in June 1960. All people and equipment were transferred to the 39th Air Division at Misawa AB, Japan.

Six years later, in July the 21st Composite Wing activated at Elmendorf AFB, Alaska. Operational units included the 17th Troop Carrier Squadron, flying C-130s; the 317th Fighter Interceptor Squadron, flying the F-102A, TF-102A, T-33 and

EB-57E; and the 21st Operations Squadron, flying the C-118A,

C-123B, EC-54D and CH-21B. The 317th FIS was inactivated in December 1969.

In June 1970, the 43rd Tactical Fighter Squadron arrived from MacDill AFB, Fla. The wing's newest flying squadron brought 18 F-4E Phantoms, which began alert duties at Elmendorf AFB, King Salmon Airport, Galena Airport, and Eielson AFB, Alaska.

The 21st Composite Wing again became known as the 21st Tactical Fighter Wing in October 1979.

The 21st TFW underwent an extreme reorganization in March 1982. The Air Force replaced the wing's F-4s with F-15s and A-10s.

In January 1982, the 18th Tactical Fighter Squadron moved to Eielson assigned to the 343rd Composite Wing, flying the A-10, while the 43rd TFS maintained its air superiority role with the F-15 fighter.

In 1987, the 21st TFW also gained the 54th TFS, which flew the F-15 as well.

In May 1991, the wing received its first F-15E Strike Eagle and activated its third flying squadron, the 90th TFS. In February 1992, the wing inactivated as part of an Air Force-wide restructuring.

SPACE MISSION

The wing was activated again in May 1992 at Peterson. At that time, elements of the 1st Space Wing and 3rd Space Support Wing were combined to fulfill AFSPC's attack warning mission and to serve as the host unit for Peterson.

In April 1995, the wing assumed the space control mission and added the former 73rd Space Group, the 721st Space Group, and Cheyenne Mountain AFS to its mission responsibilities. Reorganization continued into 1996. The 4th Space Warning Squadron inactivated at Holloman AFB, with assets transferring to the 137th Space Warning Squadron of the Colorado Air National Guard. Further, the 17th Space Surveillance Squadron inactivated at RAF Edzell, part of its system transferring to RAF Feltwell.

Despite these losses, the 21st remained, in organizational terms, the largest wing in the Air Force. Recognizing the need for a second operational group to handle the prolific number of worldwide sites, the Air Force activated the 821st Space Group on May 31, 1996, at Buckley Air National Guard Base in Denver, Colo., and assigned the unit to the 21st Space Wing.

In 1997, the 21st inactivated the 19th Space Surveillance Squadron, closing a long association with Turkey. Detachment 1, 3rd Space Surveillance Squadron, also inactivated in Korea. However, the wing added a new location in Europe when Detachment 4, 18th Space Surveillance Squadron, activated at Moron AB, Spain. This year saw the end of the wing's flying mission when the 84th Airlift Flight transferred to Air Material Command.

Further downsizing transpired in 1998. The 21st Medical Group transferred to the 10th Medical Group at the United States Air Force Academy, which has subsequently rejoined the wing. The 2nd Command and Control Squadron was reassigned to 14th Air Force and the 821st Logistics Squadron inactivated. Given these losses, the 21st became only the second largest wing in the United States Air Force; however, remained the most geographically dispersed.

The wing became smaller in 1999 when the 3 CACS and 5th Space Warning Squadrons inactivated and the 721st Mobile Command and Control Squadron transferred to 20th Air Force. These losses were partially offset when the 76th Space Operations Squadron joined the wing in 2000.

The 821st Air Base Group, Thule Air Base, Greenland, was activated in June 2002, as the host unit for Thule Air Base — the northernmost U.S. base. In the Fall of 2004, the wing acquired a new space surveillance system, formerly known as the Navy Fence.

As of Fall 2004, the wing is comprised of six groups and 44 units at 26 locations in four countries, making it the Air Force's most geographically dispersed wing.

21ST OPERATIONS GROUP

The 21st Operations Group manages and provides guidance to 15 geographically separated units, which provide attack warning and space control.

The group establishes operational requirements and manages the training, standardization and evaluation programs. This includes conducting command-directed evaluations and staff assistance visits.

21ST OPERATIONS GROUP DETACHMENTS 1-4

The Operations Group's four detachments provide optical space surveillance information, through three Ground-based Electro-Optical Deep Space Surveillance system detachments and one detachment operating the Transportable Optical System. The detachments pass data to the space control center at Cheyenne Mountain AFS.

The group has detachments: Det 1, Socorro, N.M.; Det 2, Diego Garcia, British Indian Ocean Territories; Det 3, Maui, Hawaii; and Det 4, Moron AB, Spain. These are the only optical sensors in the 21st Space Wing operated Space Surveillance Network.

20TH SPACE CONTROL SQUADRON

The 20th SPCS, Eglin AFB, Fla., operates and maintains the Air Force's only phased-array space surveillance system dedicated to tracking more than 9,500 near-earth and deep-space objects. The squadron executes a space control mission by performing all-weather, 24-hour tracking of manmade objects. The 20th also supports the USSTRATCOM and theater war-fighter requirements through continuous detection, identification and reporting of orbital satellite positional and intelligence data.

AEROSPACE PHYSIOLOGY UNIT

The Aerospace Physiology Unit provides human performance enhancement training to Department of Defense aircrew members from the Rocky Mountain region, Air Force Academy cadets, and civilian pilots certified through the Federal Aviation Administration. Training is comprised of classroom instruction and an altitude or hypobaric chamber flight.

Classes are arranged and offered according to the aircrew's present or future aircraft type or mission role. Classroom instruction is aimed at identifying and helping aircrew members minimize personal and mission-related risks that negatively influence human performance. Topics of instruction include:

- Altitude-related physiology
- Situation awareness and attention management
- Mission-driven and self-imposed stress
- Spatial disorientation and visual illusions
- G-force induced loss of consciousness

During the altitude chamber flight portion of training, aircrews are exposed to an un-pressurized environment.

This allows aircrews to experience the effects of atmospheric pressure changes on the body, familiarize themselves with symptoms of hypoxia (oxygen deprivation) and learn how and when to use their oxygen equipment.

The Aerospace Physiology Unit, building 425, is open from 6:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Monday through Friday. To schedule training, call 556-4185.

821ST AIR BASE GROUP

The 821st Air Base Group, Thule Air Base, Greenland — the northernmost U.S. base — is the host unit for Thule Air Base. The group is a geographically separated unit of the 21st SW.

The 821st ABG:

Operates a 10,000-foot runway and associated airfield, the only airfield in northern Greenland capable of supporting jet aircraft.

Operates the world's northernmost deep-water port.

Provides logistics re-supply operations support for smaller military sites both in Greenland and northern Canada, as well as support for several arctic scientific studies.

MISSION

The mission of the 821st ABG is to operate and maintain Thule Air Base in support of missile warning and space surveillance operations missions.

The 821st ABG provides security, communications, civil engineering, personnel, services, logistics, and medical support to remote active duty units in a combined United States, Canadian, Danish, and Greenlandic environment of more than 800 military, civilian, and contractor personnel.

The 821st ABG operates DOD's northernmost seaport and provides a unique platform for arctic training, international scientific research, and environmental programs.

Because of its location in the arctic, the base is completely self-sufficient, with its own electric and steam plants, and water filtration and pumping system. The unit maintains 65 miles of roads, which connects it to several locations necessary to support the mission.

HISTORY

In 1946, a combined Danish-American radio and weather station was established at Dundas, later called Thule.

International tensions prompted Denmark and the United States to sign a defense treaty allowing the construction of a complete air base. Thule was built during the summers of 1951 and 1952.

The origin of the 821st ABG goes back to the establishment of the Ballistic Missile Early Warning Site in 1961.

Throughout the years, several commands were responsible for the base, including Northeast Air Command, Air Defense Command and Strategic Air Command.

The unit was first designated as the 12th Missile Warning Squadron and later became the 12th Missile Warning Group.

AFSPC took control of Thule in 1983 and the unit was redesignated as the 12th SWS in 1992.

In June 2002, the 821st Air Base Group was created as the host unit for Thule Air Base.

The 821st Air Base Group is located at Thule Air Base, Greenland.

PUBLIC AFFAIRS

Public Affairs advises and assists commanders in communicating Air Force messages to Air Force people and the American public. PA also identifies and manages communication issues impacting the Air Force's ability to conduct its peacetime and wartime missions.

The base newspaper, the Space Observer, is part of the internal information section. It keeps people informed about base-level news and activities, and Air Force issues and policies. More than 7,000 copies are distributed each Thursday. An electronic version is available at: www.spaceobserver.com.

In addition to the base newspaper, the commander's action line column answers complaints, suggestions, or comments. All callers should first try to solve the problem or complaint by using their chain of command and the affected agency.

Information that plays on air is submitted by different units and can be submitted to the public affairs office at: access.channel@peterson.af.mil.

The public affairs office is responsible for managing overall program content and will review inputs and schedule them into the system.

TENANT ORGANIZATIONS

The 302nd AW supports firefighting efforts across the nation each year.

302ND AIRLIFT WING

The 302nd Airlift Wing, Colorado's only Air Force Reserve flying unit, is the largest tenant organization on Peterson. It has approximately 1,200 Reservists and 275 full-time employees assigned. The wing is one of 12 C-130 Air Force Reserve units located throughout the nation.

The wing is assigned 15 C-130H3 Hercules aircraft, which are flown by the 731st Airlift Squadron.

The mission of the 302nd AW is to train, equip, and employ airlift forces in worldwide support of our nation's vital interest.

A 302nd AW unit can be activated and deployed from the United States to any location in the world within 72 hours.

When called upon, the 302nd AW also performs fire suppression missions with two Modular Airborne Firefighting Systems. These systems are owned by the U.S.D.A. Forest Service and can be activated and installed on the aircraft within hours. The wing is the only Air Force Reserve unit trained and equipped for the MAFFS mission, which involves air-dropping fire-retardant chemicals from a height of 150 feet above the ground. The wing has flown firefighting missions throughout the western United States since the 302nd took on the Reserve portion of the MAFFS mission in 1993.

In December 2001, the 302nd AW became the first Air Force Reserve C-130 unit to mobilize and deploy in support of Operation Noble Eagle and Operation Enduring Freedom. During that period, members of the 302nd Security Force Squadron were mobilized and deployed to various locations around the globe. In 2003 and 2004, several members of the Airlift Control Flight, Aeromedical Staging Squadron and Transportation were mobilized and deployed in support of Operation Iraqi Freedom.

ABOUT THE AIRCRAFT

The C-130H has a crew of five: pilot, co-pilot, navigator, flight engineer, and loadmaster. The aircraft has a maximum allowable payload of 43,550 pounds and carries 92 combat troops, 64 paratroopers or 74 patients and a medical crew of one flight nurse and two medical technicians when configured for aeromedical evacuation.

Using its aft loading ramp and door, the C-130 can accommodate a wide variety of oversized cargo, including everything from utility helicopters and six-wheeled armored vehicles to standard palletized cargo and military personnel. In an aerial delivery role, it can air drop loads up to 42,000 pounds or use its high-floatation landing gear to land and deliver cargo on rough, dirt strips.

The Lockheed aircraft boasts state-of-the-art avionics and powerful engines, which increase its allowable cargo load, range and altitude capability. On-board sensors warn of oncoming aircraft or incoming missiles. The aircraft is also equipped with dispensers that release chaff and flares to decoy enemy missiles away from the aircraft.

Other enhancements include Global Positioning System equipment, low-power color radar and night-vision interior lighting that allows aircrews to use night-vision goggles.

ORGANIZATION

The 302nd AW comes under the operational control of the Air Force Reserve Command, headquartered at Robins AFB, Ga. When called to active duty through presidential order, the wing would be gained by 15th Air Force and would become an active-duty unit under Air Mobility Command, Scott AFB, Ill.

The 302nd also provides support to the 310th Space Group, Air Force Reserve's only space operations group. The 310th Space Group's units at Schriever AFB, Colo., currently operate three different satellite systems for the Department of Defense and the Department of Commerce, including the Navstar Global Positioning System. The 7th Operations Squadron operates the Defense Meteorological Satellite Program in support of the Department of Commerce and the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration. They track satellite launches and their "health" into early orbit and handle routine operations, satellite emergencies and satellite disposal.

HISTORY

Established as the 302nd Troop Carrier Wing on May 16, 1949, the 302nd AW was first activated by the

A 302nd AW C-130 over the Royal Gorge Bridge.

Reserve on June 27, 1949. In the mid-1950s, the wing flew airlift operations in the United States and overseas.

The 302nd AW was called to active duty during the Cuban missile crisis of 1962. During the 1960s, wing aircraft and crews performed worldwide airlift missions and participated in numerous tactical exercises. The unit was deactivated on April 1, 1981. In mid-1983, the unit, then designated the 91st Tactical Airlift Group, moved to newly constructed facilities on Peterson AFB and reactivated April 1, 1985.

The wing received one of its most challenging tests in 1990-91 with Operations Desert Shield and Storm. More than 600 wing members — including flying, air cargo, medical and maintenance personnel — deployed to the Persian Gulf, England, and stateside locations to support active-duty operations.

At the end of the Gulf War, the 302nd AW supported Operation Provide Comfort, air-dropping food and supplies to the Kurdish refugees.

The wing supported operations Provide Relief and Restore Hope in Somalia, Coronet Oak in Panama, Provide Promise's humanitarian airlift to Bosnia, and hurricane relief to Homestead AFB, Fla.

In 1999, the wing also assisted in humanitarian relief to refugees from Kosovo and Operation Allied Force.

The wing was most recently activated in support of Operations Enduring Freedom and Noble Eagle in 2001, flying airlift missions out of Europe. The wing's security forces squadron provided aircraft security and air base defense throughout the United States and in the Southwest Asia theater during the war.

200TH AIRLIFT SQUADRON

The 200th Airlift Squadron is the only C-21A (Lear 35) unit in the Air National Guard, and flies the newest C-21 model aircraft in the Air Force.

In November 1997, the 200th ALS took delivery of the first of two C-21A aircraft and in April 1998 began flying missions assigned by the Joint Operational Support Aircraft Center.

The unit moved from Buckley Air National Guard Base to Peterson in April 1999. Current manning includes 19 full time and traditional guardsmen, 15 rated pilots and four enlisted support people, plus contract maintenance that is shared with an active-duty C-21 flight.

367th RECRUITING SQUADRON

The mission of the Air Force Recruiting Service is to recruit a high-quality volunteer force from a cross-section of America. Emphasis is on recruiting intelligent young men and women with no prior military service who can be trained to handle the sophisticated systems and equipment of today's highly technical aerospace force.

The Air Force Recruiting Service is also responsible for recruiting chaplains, physicians, dentists, nurses, health care administrators, and Bio-medical Science Corps officers in a variety of specialties from civilian sources and for obtaining officer candidates for the Air Force Reserve Officer Training Corps and Officer Training School.

The 367th Recruiting Squadron covers more than 550,000 square miles in the Western and Southwestern regions of the United States. The 367th RS is divided into eight enlisted, non-prior service flights, each responsible for different parts of the squadron's zone. The squadron has one officer accessions flight that has five offices located throughout our area, and four military entrance processing stations.

544TH INFORMATION OPERATIONS GROUP

The 544th Information Operations Group provides space-related information operations expertise throughout the space arena.

It is the only Air Combat Command unit under the 67th Information's Operations Wing that performs this mission in support of Air Force Space Command, 14th Air Force (SPACEAF), and USSTRATCOM.

The group is the Air Force leader in gaining, exploiting, and applying global space-derived and space-related intelligence to achieve information dominance.

The group's focus is to the final frontier of space and information operations.

The mission includes all aspects of information operations, from traditional intelligence missions, the core-focus of intelligence professionals for years, to the latest IO technologies.

84TH AIRLIFT FLIGHT

The 84th Airlift Flight operates eight C-21A aircraft, providing operational support airlift throughout North America. The unit routinely supports top U.S. and Canadian commanders, the Superintendent of the Air Force Academy, key federal officials, members of Congress and senior-ranking military leaders.

The unit also provides a 24-hour alert for time-sensitive medical evacuation missions which could be required to go anywhere in the United States.

The 84th is staffed primarily by first assignment pilots who acquire valuable flying experience operating C-21A aircraft. In wartime, the C-21A provides worldwide, time-sensitive movement of people and cargo.

Det 4. AFOTEC

The Air Force Operational Test and Evaluation Center was established in 1974, as a direct reporting unit to the Air Force Chief of Staff, responsible for identifying operational deficiencies on weapons systems before designated production and acquisition decisions.

Detachment 4 was originally established in 1980 to support mobile MX missile development at Kirtland AFB, N.M. In 1984, Det. 4 became an operating location here, in support of space-related testing and to serve as a liaison to AFSPC.

Today the fine men and women of Det. 4 continue in this proud tradition as the primary operational testers of space, missile systems and missile defense whose procurement costs approach $80 billion.

These professional testers have become the first line of defense, ensuring present and future space systems continue to defend our borders and troops worldwide, and helping to ensure we are never again at a disadvantage in the space arena.

A GOOD NEIGHBOR

The diversity of Peterson doesn't stop at the gate. It resides in the surrounding strong communities where our military members live.

Peterson has always been a strong supporter of organizations outside of the gate for many years. Some of the annual events supported by the base include:

CARE AND SHARE "HARVEST OF LOVE"

Care and Share of Southern Colorado is a non-profit organization that collects food for distribution to area food banks. Their largest annual food drive occurs in November and is called the "Harvest of Love."

Peterson has supported the food drive by providing volunteers and vehicles to pick up donations from area schools, unload them at the warehouse, and package them into sensible units.

COLORADO SPRINGS SCHOOL DISTRICT 11

The 21st Space Wing also is a proud partner with Colorado Springs School District 11. Activities supported by wing members include supporting classes with volunteers for school events — science fairs, career days, tours, guest lecturers, and mentors. The wing also sponsors the Mitchell High School Junior ROTC program.

PIKES PEAK OR BUST RODEO

One of the biggest annual events supported by Team Pete is the Pikes Peak or Bust Rodeo.

The rodeo has been a Colorado Springs, tradition since 1937 and has always showcased the pinnacle of rodeo talent and action, providing wholesome entertainment for the Pikes Peak community.

LOCAL COMMUNITIES AND ATTRACTIONS

Colorado Springs has many local attractions, such as the Broodmoor Hotel at the base of Cheyenne Mountain.

Held every August, proceeds from the rodeo go to area military installations MWR programs.

SILVER KEY SENIOR SERVICES

Silver Key Senior Services is an organization dedicated to the elderly. This non-profit organization, founded in 1971, annually assists more than 15,000 elderly in the Pikes Peak region.

Their goals are to promote independent living for our elders; help fulfill their basic and social needs; strengthen their self-sufficiency; increase their self-reliance; and provide meaningful replacements for those losses associated with advancing age. Team Pete members supported a paint-a-thon, just one of many volunteer projects.

LOCAL INSTALLATIONS

Colorado Springs' reputation as a prime location for important military installations got its start in the 1940s when Fort Carson was established on 137,000 acres a few miles south of the city.

FORT CARSON

Fort Carson is located south of Colorado Springs in the shadow of Cheyenne Mountain. Approximately 15,000 active-duty soldiers and 1,300 civilians are stationed at "The Mountain Post."

The major units assigned to the post include a mechanized infantry brigade, a Special Forces group, an armored cavalry regiment, and an area support group. Many other smaller units also call Fort Carson home.

Peterson people are often referred to Evans Army Community Hospital located in building 7500 on Titus Boulevard. The five-story medical complex has a 76-bed capacity. The two-story clinic building contains 400 examination and treatment rooms. A common area connects the clinic building and the main hospital. This area includes the main entrance, medical library, chapel and pharmacy.

AIR FORCE ACADEMY

The military's presence expanded with the Air Force Academy in the 1950s. It occupies more than 18,000 acres of land just northwest of Colorado Springs. Just over 4,200 cadets attend the Academy. More than 1,000 men and women enter the academy each year to begin a four-year program that leads to a commission in the Air Force.

In addition to serving the health care needs of all the cadets and active-duty people at the academy, its hospital provides inpatient medical care for people assigned to Peterson AFB.

The academy is one of the most popular tourist attractions in Colorado. Nearly 1 million people visit the facility each year. People also come to see the Air Force Falcons compete in Mountain West Athletic Conference athletic events. For ticket information, call (719) 472-1895.

SCHRIEVER AIR FORCE BASE

Schriever Air Force Base, located approximately 10 miles east of Peterson AFB, was established in the mid-1980s.

It is home to the Air Force's 50th Space Wing, a component of AFSPC.

The mission of the 50th Space Wing is to command and control operational Department of Defense satellites and manage the worldwide Air Force Satellite Control Network. The wing operates satellite operation centers at Schriever AFB, and remote tracking stations and other command and control facilities around the world. These facilities monitor satellites during launch, put the satellites in their proper orbits following launch, operate the satellites while they are in orbit, and fix satellite anomalies when they occur.

Also located at Schriever is the Joint National Integration Center. JNIC provides a state-of-the-art capability for Ballistic Missile and Theater Air Defense testing, modeling and simulation, and analysis.

The facility also houses several tenants, including the Space Warfare Center and the Cheyenne Mountain Training System, which supports strategic space systems and missile defense programs.

Schriever is also home to the 310th Space Group, the Air Force Reserve's only Space Operations Group.

14,110-foot Pikes Peak, one of many high, scenic peaks of the Rockies.

To the south is the Arkansas River valley with its agricultural lands and the town of Pueblo. To the north lies the Denver metropolitan area.

Much of the city occupies gently rolling hills which slope westward, offering unobstructed views of Pikes Peak and the Front Range from most sections of town.

From the very beginning, Colorado Springs and the Pikes Peak region have been developed as a community with quality of life in mind. Today they offer residents a blend of business opportunities, culture, and unparalleled outdoor recreation.

HISTORY

Colorado Springs began as one man's dream. When Gen. William Jackson Palmer first saw the scenic attraction of the Pikes Peak region, he immediately knew it was a location that could attract his wealthy European and East Coast friends. The city's first stake was driven in 1871. Colorado Springs became especially popular with the British and acquired the nickname Little London. Riding the rails, visitors came to see the area's beauty and were inspired to stay by a mild climate and the region's growing resort accommodations.

In the 1890s, Colorado Springs found it was surrounded by more than scenic wealth. Gold was discovered in nearby Cripple Creek in 1891, and Colorado Springs found itself a thriving financial center. The golden years lasted until 1917, when the United States went to silver for its coinage and the local economy once again emphasized tourism.

Looking to expand its economic base, the city offered land to the military in 1942. With the start of World War II, Fort Carson was established on 137,000 acres to the south of Colorado Springs.

The military's presence grew in the 1950s with the opening of the Air Force Academy. Over the next 30 years, Peterson AFB, Cheyenne Mountain AFS, and Schriever AFB helped create Colorado Springs' reputation as the nation's military space capital.

Manufacturing expanded tremendously when the area's quality of life and cost advantages were recognized in the 1960s and 1970s. Today, computers, electronic equipment, semiconductors, precision parts, plastics, heavy equipment, and countless other high-quality products are manufactured in the Pikes Peak region and shipped to national and international markets.

The amateur sports segment is one of several service industries expanding in the region. Colorado Springs is home to the headquarters of the U.S. Olympic Committee and Olympic Training Center, the world's finest multisport training facility.

CLIMATE

Colorado Springs' pleasant climate is a key element in the area's high quality of life. Weather in the Pikes Peak region is surprisingly mild; uncomfortable extremes are rare. Despite a moderately high-altitude location near the Rocky Mountains, Colorado Springs on average gets less snow than Denver, Salt Lake City, or Minneapolis.

The mountains capture most of the precipitation from easterly-moving systems, giving the Pikes Peak region dry and sunny weather during most of the year.

At an elevation of 6,035 feet, residents enjoy a number of climatic advantages.

Long and lingering Indian autumns are common, while spring is a mild precursor to summer. Colorado Springs' meteorological classification is an alpine desert with about 250 days of sunshine and only 15 to 16 inches of precipitation per year. Humidity remains comfortably low.

While snow is not uncommon, snowfalls do not remain on the ground long. Sunny days are abundant during the winter and the sun's intensity at this elevation

These northwesterly winds can cause rapid increases in temperatures, reminding residents that the Indian meaning of Chinook is "snoweater." golf, bike, hike, play tennis, and enjoy all types of outdoor activities in the sunshine.

TOMORROW IS HISTORY.

The landscape of future warfare shifts almost daily. That's why Northrop Grumman is developing advanced battle management systems that deliver superior information along with the tools to exploit it. This network of integrated technologies allows military planners to collect, process and disseminate an uninterrupted flow of real-time information. So they can act swiftly and decisively, before that information gets old. Northrop Grumman is also moving beyond, digitizing the battlespace, delivering interoperable systems that can respond to a spectrum of threats, whether they exist on land, at sea, in the air, space or cyberspace. Northrop Grumman. Ensuring information superiority and battlespace dominance in every realm of future warfare.

More thought per square foot.

The Mosaic Cottage at Greenhaven

This is the guiding philosophy behind John Laing Homes. It's our experience that better ideas lead to better places — from the way a home feels to the way the neighborhood comes together. So in each of the communities where we build — in every single home — you'll find ideas that make home more valuable and life more enjoyable. Like a master bedroom with its own private deck. Or an elegant rotunda entry. Or even a separate guest house for visitors. And we back it all up with award-winning customer support. Because what could be more important than your happiness?
